

Enda Kenny says that the government will decide on abortion BEFORE Christmas. That means he will NOT be consulting you.

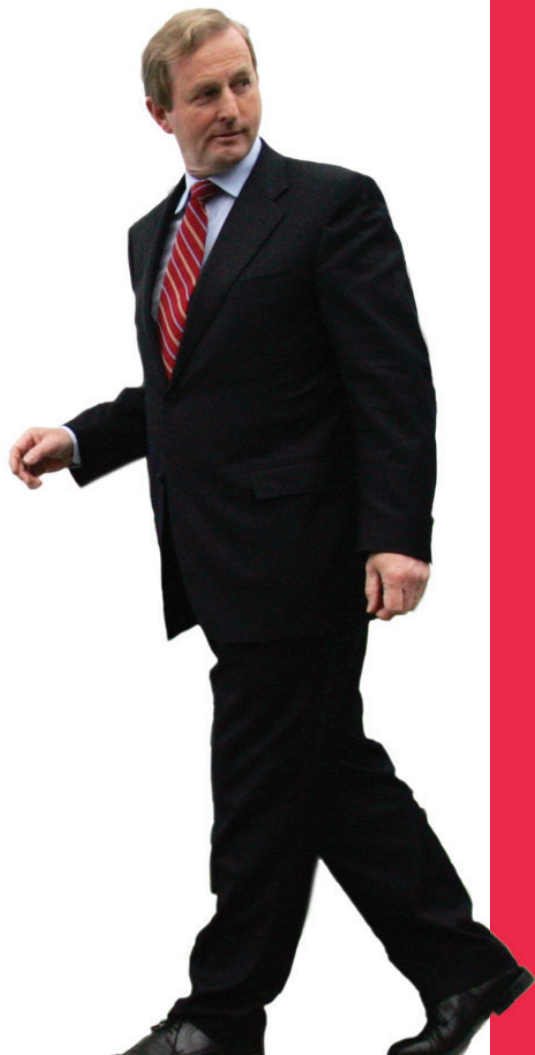

It also means he is breaking the pro-life promise Fine Gael made in Election 2011 when they promised not to legalise abortion.

Abortion campaigners are using the tragic death of Savita Halappanavar in Galway to push for abortion. But leading medical experts have confirmed her death was NOT caused by our ban on abortion.

The truth is that Ireland's pro-life laws protect BOTH mother and baby. Our doctors are obliged to save the mother's life - even if that risks the life of her baby.

Enda knows this. So why is Fine Gael pushing to legalise abortion in Ireland?

MAKE YOUR VOICE HEARD NOW!

Your TDs should not force abortion legislation through the Dáil. The people should decide this issue in a referendum.

Do you want abortion to be legalised in Ireland? If not, speak up NOW, and demand a referendum, not legislation.

Call the numbers below and tell your TDs that you DO NOT want abortion legalised in Ireland, and that the Irish people should decide on this issue.

Thank you.

NEVER AGAIN.

Abortion on demand in the UK: 200,000 babies killed every year.* Don't open the door to that.

It's important to remember that Savita's tragic death was not caused by Ireland's ban on abortion. The real facts are now emerging and it's becoming clear that abortion campaigners simply exploited her death to push for abortion in Ireland.

An official autopsy shows that Savita died of E-coli septicaemia.* Two medical investigations are now underway to find out how that happened.

But right now, without your consent, Fine Gael is using the confusion arising from this tragedy to legalise abortion.

They want to legislate for the X case. That will lead to abortion on demand, through all nine months of pregnancy.

It means abortion on mental health grounds, similar to Britain, where:

- ▶ 200,000 unborn babies are aborted every year.*
- ▶ According to official statistics, 99% of those abortions are carried out for social reasons.
- ▶ Babies are aborted right up to six months for any reason at all - and until BIRTH if the baby has a disability.
- ▶ More than 60 babies who survive abortion each year are simply left to die.

It's also led to a situation where women feel coerced into abortion, and where the hurt caused to women is ignored.

In Britain, 20% of all unborn babies are killed by abortion - and up to 30% are repeat abortions. Is that what you want for Ireland?

VOTE FINE GAEL? NEVER AGAIN IF THEY LEGALISE ABORTION.

Abortion in the UK: right up until birth if the baby has a disability.* Don't open the door to that.

Time is short - and Enda Kenny is rushing to push abortion through right now. He wants a decision made before Christmas.

Fine Gael are simply IGNORING the wishes of the pro-life majority of Irish people.

The fact is that medical experts have already told us that abortion is never medically necessary, and that Irish doctors will always act to save mothers.

And the sad reality is that abortion also kills women: in the US alone, 12 women died after an abortion in 2009.

It is the Irish people - not a European Court, or a political committee - who should decide this issue.

Love them both: Because mothers and babies deserve better than abortion.

Abortion in the UK: Up to 90% of babies with Down's Syndrome are aborted. Don't open the door to that.
